COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course presents a broad overview of many areas of surgical pathology and is presented by Harvard Medical School faculty and two distinguished guest speakers with known expertise in the specific subject matter areas. The course is designed to update both academic practicing pathologists and those in the community with new advances in surgical pathology. We also aim to provide aids in diagnosis based on conventional morphologic analysis as well as updates on new techniques such as immunohistochemistry and molecular pathology to the extent that they bear on establishing the correct diagnosis. This five-day course features conventional didactic lectures with frequent discussion periods and extensive time for one-on-one contact with faculty and Q&A.

SMALL GROUP SESSIONS
Attendance is limited. Sessions will be assigned on a first-come-first-serve basis. Please see schedule for specific times.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
• Recognize unusual entities using appropriate diagnostic criteria
• Evaluate new criteria for pathologic diagnoses in all areas of surgical pathology
• Review the decision-making process used to arrive at a specific diagnosis
• Utilize modern staging systems for tumor identification
• Apply immunohistochemistry judiciously to establish or confirm diagnoses

TARGET AUDIENCE
Specific learners include Specialty Physicians in Pathology.

ABMS/ACGME COMPETENCIES
This course is designed to meet one or more of the following American Board of Medical Specialties and Accreditation Council of Graduate Medical Education competencies:
• Medical Knowledge
• Practice-based Learning and Improvement
